

NO SOUND HEARD FROM SUBMARINE FOR OVER 8 HOURS

Rescue Workers, Nevertheless,
Start Another Attempt
To Raise Thetis

MILLION-TO-ONE CHANCE

Vessels Huddling Over Submerged Craft, and More
Divers Go Down

By Charles A. Smith

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
BIRKENHEAD, Eng., June 3—(INS)—
Without a sound for more than eight hours from what may prove to be the sunk of 88 men, rescue workers today nevertheless started another desperate attempt to raise the submarine Thetis from the mud of Liverpool Bay.

Gambling on what grim officials of the British admiralty admitted was a "million-to-one chance," vessels huddling over the submarine sent down to pull up the 265-foot-long submersible.

Their hopes rising and falling with conflicting reports, wives and relatives of the 88 in the Thetis, awaiting news about the shipbuilding plant at Birkenhead where she was constructed, were given another pang of disappointment today.

The latest revision in mounting Admiralty lists today put the number of men aboard the Thetis when she submerged at 101. Four escaped alive, one was drowned trying to escape, and 96 are assumed still to be trapped.
The Admiralty said this list was complete.

At first the Admiralty reported that tappings were heard from the Thetis at 4 a. m. (11 p. m. Friday E. D. T.), but later naval authorities said this was not correct. The last tappings were heard two hours earlier. At 10 a. m. (5 a. m. E. D. T.) the Admiralty heard no further news that might afford any hope.

Nevertheless, the Admiralty refused to give up hope or to quit striving.
Despite the long silence from the big submarine, spokesmen in London held to the belief that rescue efforts renewed with drawn would bring forth more than the four already saved.

Rev. George E. Boswell To Preach Baccalaureate Sermon

Tomorrow afternoon the baccalaureate service of the Bristol high school class of 1939 will be held in the high school auditorium at three o'clock.

The service will be in charge of the Rev. George E. Boswell, S. T. B., rector of St. James' Church. There will be music in charge of Charles H. Quigley, director of music at the Bristol high school. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Boswell.

Funds Are Being Pledged For July 4th Celebration

Funds are being pledged and cash contributions are being paid to solicitors who are canvassing for the money with which to stage a July 4th celebration here.

The committee has announced that contributions will be acknowledged after they have been paid to the treasurer, Roy F. Fry. The publication of a list of those contributing and the amount of their donations will be made in the Courier.

It is very important that all contributions be made as soon as possible as the contract for the fireworks will have to be signed not later than June 15th. The committee urges that this fact be kept in mind by the solicitors
as well as the public.

Solicitors are now at liberty to canvass their respective districts and they will then make their reports.

Mrs. James M. Vansant, 65, Dies in Middletown Twp.

A lengthy illness proved fatal yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Addie K. Vansant, wife of James M. Vansant, Trenton Road, Middletown Township. Mrs.
Vansant was 65 years of age.

The deceased, who was born in Falls Township, had resided in this part of Bucks County for most of her lifetime. She was a member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Hulmeville.

WILLIAM S. LIVENGOOD, JR.,
Secretary of Internal Affairs of Penna.

WILLIAM S. LIVENGOOD TO SPEAK AT FARM SCHOOL

State Secretary of Internal Affairs To Deliver Main
Address

EXERCISES AT 1.30 P. M.

Pennsylvania's Secretary of Internal Affairs, William S. Livengood, Jr., one of the most forceful speakers in the State, will deliver the main address tomorrow afternoon at the annual Founder's Day exercises at National Farm School, near Doylestown, it was announced today by the school's new president, Dr. H. B. Allen.

Preparations have been completed to entertain more than a thousand persons on the school's campus for this affair, which is marked by an all-day outing to the school, participated in by hundreds of families from Philadelphia and other nearby communities.

Founder's Day was instituted at the school following the death of the late Rev. Joseph I. Krauskopf, noted Philadelphia rabbi and founder of National Farm School. A tree dedication will take place in the afternoon, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. William H.
Fineshriber, of Philadelphia, at which time 52 memorial trees and five festive trees will be dedicated.

Visitors to the school, and everybody is welcome, will be greeted by the new president, Dr. H. B. Allen. There will be a tribute to the founder by Joseph H. Hagedorn, chairman of the board of the school, followed by Secretary Livengood's address.

Announcement will also be made of the details of the "James Work Foundation," and the scholarship award that goes with it. This announcement will be made by Harry H.
Rubenstein, secretary-treasurer of the "James Work Foundation." Mr. Work, a prominent resident of Bucks county, has been one of the outstanding benefactors of the school for many years.

All buildings and departments at the school will be open for inspection.
There will be an educational tour of the grounds in the afternoon, for children, during the exercises. If the

Bakelaars Entertain In Honor of Tot's Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Marinus Bakelaar, 1801
Farragut avenue, entertained relatives and friends last evening in honor of their son Edward, who was two years old. Refreshments were served amidst blue and white decorations. Edward was the recipient of many gifts.

Those present: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kearney and daughter, Miss Thelma Kearney; Misses Irene and Marie Walker, East Patterson, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward DeKoyser and daughter Gertrude and son Edward;

A SHOWER

Miss Lucy Norato, 345 Dorrance street, and Miss Virginia Colella, Beaver street, gave a surprise miscellaneous shower last evening in honor of Miss Angelina Oriolo, Wood street.
The guests were assembled at the Norato home when Miss Oriolo arrived. The party was held in the basement which was decorated in blue and pink. Games were played and dancing was enjoyed. About 35 guests attended from Bristol and Philadelphia.

The Show Must Go On

(By "The Stroller")
A wooden "hobby horse" of an ancient vintage "pinch-hit" for a live pony last night at the dance recital in Mutual Aid Hall.

The instructress, Miss Winifred V. Tracy, had all arrangements made for the appearance of a real pony in the circus act which went over so big. But the pony very in-considerately "up and died" this week, leaving the entire circus
"up in the air."

There was much scurrying through the borough in a search for a "hobby-horse," and old spotted Dobbin was found in Harry Arnold's attic, ready to do his stunt. He did it to perfection tonight, considering the fact he hadn't performed since Harry was a lad.

AID CHILDREN'S HEALTH AT THE NURSERY SCHOOL

In Three Years Only Four Cases of Contagious Disease Found; 256 Children

FIFTY ATTEND DAILY

With the rounding out of three years of activity at the Bristol Nursery School, Wood street, near Mulberry, records of those in charge show that of the 256 tots who have been under care of the school from time to time, there were but two cases of chicken pox and two cases of whooping cough recorded in the group.

The low rate of contagious diseases in such a group where the average daily attendance is 50, is due to a great extent to the daily examinations given the girls and boys, the health-giving food served, proper rest, and play in the fresh air and sunshine, in the opinion of the supervisor, Mrs. Alice Beller.

The school, during its third anniversary week, is to benefit through a rummage sale, which was scheduled for yesterday and today. The proceeds are to be placed in the fund used for housing and heat. The funds for workers' salaries, and the food, are provided by the United States Government.

At present the enrollment of the nursery is 54, with a daily average attendance of 50. The school continues throughout the summer, being open five days a week, 52 weeks a year.

There the little tots of nursery age are given an opportunity to learn to care for themselves; they are taught so that they develop healthful habits, and learn through play with other tots of their age, and association with the teachers, how to get along with other people.

A great boon to their health is attendance at the school, for if cuts or scratches or other minor sores are noted, first-aid treatment is administered as soon as they arrive in the morning. Should a child have a cold, or symptoms of illness, he is returned home. Cod liver oil is administered daily; they have long periods to play

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Mr. Lasser's Ten-Strike

Washington, June 1.
MR. DAVID
LASSER, head of the Workers Alliance, is to be congratulated. His success in getting
Mr. Franklin
D. Roosevelt as one of the speakers at the Washington
"conference" of his organization to be held next week is an extraordinary achievement. Until it was announced no one would have believed it.

AS is well known, the Workers Alliance is an organization which has been formed among the men and women on Federal relief. It claims a very large membership among the WPA millions and its primary purpose is to put pressure upon Government officials and Congress for more and more money for its members. In pursuit of its campaign for greater appropriations it denounces members of Congress, threatens them with "hunger marches" and "demonstrations," floods their offices with propaganda and maintains the most belligerent lobby in Washington.

MONTHS ago it was charged by the well-informed Dr. Stanley High—never denied—that the Workers Alliance was conceived by leaders of the Communist movement in America; that it is still dominated by Communists, that it is part of the Communist party strategy of New Deal support. The recent House investigation sustained most of these charges. Mr. Lasser himself asserted that he is not a Communist, though since he has been head of the Alliance he has made a pilgrimage to the Soviet Union, where he was cordially received by Russian officials. However, Mr. Benjamin, secretary and treasurer of the Alliance, admits membership in the Communist party, as do various members of

Find Boy's Body

New Brunswick, N. J., June 3—
Seven-year-old Preston Raub, Jr., missing since Tuesday, was found dead today in an ice box in the cellar of his home.

State Police, who were in charge of the search for the boy, said he apparently had been playing in the ice box when the heavy lid slipped down, locking him in the box. Death apparently was due to suffocation.

The ice box, of the type used in many small ice cream stores, is approximately 3x4 feet, with a hinged lid on top. The lid automatically locks when closed, and cannot be opened from inside the box.

The boy's body was found by his grandfather.

Abandon Hope for Men On Submarine

Birkenhead, England, June 3—All hope was abandoned today for 96 men trapped aboard the sunken British submarine "Thetis," and the disaster in Liverpool Bay was marked down as the worst undersea tragedy of all times.

Campbell Laird, Ltd., builder of the vessel which nosed into waters of the bay on a test dive, issued a brief statement declaring there was "no hope of saving further life." "It is considered," the statement said "that all the men died from effects of chlorine gas."

Shift Fight Scene

New York, June 3—Because of disappointing gate receipts for the Baer-Nova fight, promoter Mike Jacobs has decided to shift the June 28th bout between Joe Louis and Tony Galento to Philadelphia. It was reported today.
Jacob was said to feel the World's Fair will put a damper on big fight dates for the summer.

Jacobs refused to confirm or deny the various rumors concerning the forthcoming battle but made no secret of the fact that the crowd of 16,753 paid spectators at the Baer-Nova match Thursday night was far below his expectations and left him slightly annoyed.

Large Crowd Pleased With Dance Recital

Those who witnessed the dance recital of pupils of Miss Winifred Tracy in Mutual Aid Hall last evening, are still thrilled with the gorgeous spectacles of the presentations.

From lips of all who filled the hall for the gala affair, there are being heard words of praise for the circus which surprised as the entourage paraded down the main aisle. The monkeys brought forth gales of laughter with their antics, and the penguins delighted.

The pony ballet proved one of the fine features of the evening, and the heart ballet one of the most colorful.

The gorgeous costumes seen in the Winter Wonderland presentation, with the icicle ballet in particular, added greatly to the evening's performance, and Miss Tracy and her pupils were roundly congratulated.

INSTALL MRS. DU HAMEL AS PRESIDENT OF CLUB

Succeeds Mrs. Earl H. Tomb As Head of The Travel Club

SPRING FLOWER SHOW

At an installational ceremony in the Travel Club home yesterday afternoon, Mrs. William DuHamel, the recently-elected president of the local women's club, took over her duties as leader of the organization for the ensuing two years.

The retiring president, Mrs. Earl H.
Tomb, conducted the ceremony of installation, the other members being inducted into office including: vice-president, Mrs. E. Linton Martin; recording secretary, Mrs. Russell W.
DeLong; corresponding secretary, Mrs.
John A. Moyer; treasurer, Mrs. Horace
H. Burton.

The numerous chairmen of committees, as well as the officers who have been serving during the club period just ended, reported upon activities conducted, and progress made along many lines.

The annual message of the president, Mrs. Tomb, was one of the features of the afternoon program.

The message, reports and installation were scheduled for the regular meeting hour, three o'clock, this being the final session of the club year.

Members had gathered at noon for a box luncheon, with coffee being served by a few of the members. A flower show then took place, the winning displays being determined by popular ballot. Those placing are as follows:

Arrangement of flowers, in wall bracket or hanging vase, Mrs. George LaDue.

Arrangement of flowers suitable for patriotic luncheon table for six guests, Mrs. Russell W. DeLong.

Arrangement of garden roses, Mrs.
V. V. Vansant.

Arrangement of flowers in your favorite container, Mrs. Earl H. Tomb.

Arrangement of flowers in pottery pitcher, Mrs. Walter W. Pitzzonka.

Three specimen stalks of iris in a milk bottle, Mrs. Theodore B. Megar-gee.

A card party is scheduled for next Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the club home, the sponsoring group being the Garden Section of the club. Mrs. Walter Pitzzonka, chairman; Mrs. Elwood Gosline, Mrs. Griffith L. Williams, and Mrs. Earl H. Tomb, all members of the garden committee, are in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Named Auxiliary President

The regular meeting of American Legion Auxiliary of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, was held last evening in the post home, Mrs. Benjamin Les-sig presiding.

Mrs. Harry Wessaw, child welfare chairman, and Mrs. Marvel Durham, poppy chairman, gave excellent reports.

The next Bi-County Council meeting will be held in Norristown on June 8th, with nomination and election of officers. Delegates from Bristol will be:
Mrs. Benjamin Lessig, Mrs. Robert Downing, Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., and Mrs. Maurice Delker. The Eastern District Veterans' Hospital, June 15th.

The Department president and Department commander will be present at the meeting. The picnic for the Veterans of Coatesville Hospital will be held on June 28th, at Fort Washington.

Mrs. Arthur Zug, junior adviser of the Junior Auxiliary, reported 29 members enrolled.

Nomination and election of officers
took place, with the following results:
Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., president; Mrs. Fred Bryner, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Fechtenburg, secretary; Miss Emily Bracken, treasurer; Mrs. Benjamin Lessig, historian;
Mrs. Harold Dettmer, chaplain; Mrs.
Harry Chapin, 1st sergeant-at-arms;
Mrs. Henry Imer, 2nd sergeant-at-arms.

SATURDAY, JUNE 3, 1939

HESTER-SKELTER SPENDING

The underlying reason why the Federal spending rate rises finds expression again and again in Congress when the appropriation bills are being passed. For a recent case, note the following by Rep. Robert F. Rick, a Pennsylvania Republican, while the House was considering this year's enlarged appropriation for the Navy:

"Mr. Chairman, if a tailor wants to make a suit of clothes for an individual, he will take the measurements of that individual, then cut the cloth to fit. When a person wants to spend money, he figures out how much he has to spend. . . Here we have men supposed to be intelligent, men of ability, who do not have the business aptitude to figure out if it is possible to secure the funds before we make the appropriations."

On the same day, the enlarged Agriculture Bill being before the Senate, Senator King, Utah Democrat, dealt with the same point, though much more exhaustively, in the attempt to apply a remedy.

He proposed the creation of a new body in Congress, a congressional budget authority, to have the function of scrutinizing and, to a considerable extent, the power of passing on appropriations, taking into consideration the total which may reasonably be expected to be available in the Treasury.

Senator Vandenberg, a frequent speaker on the same point, after approving King's idea, wondered what had become of President Roosevelt's proposal, two years ago, to grant the President power to veto items in appropriation bills. That revival of item vetoes encountered such opposition that it was shown to have no chance of adoption. There is probably even less chance for Senator King's proposal.

In the face of much admission of need for it, control of the gross totals of appropriations is next to impossible because each item is considered singly, with powerful pressure exerted in behalf of each Congress deals with a matter vitally concerning public welfare when dealing with plans to permit cutting its huge appropriation bills down to sizes that will fit Uncle Sam's pocketbook.

JUNE

June is the month of roses, but it is the month of iris and of peonies too, and the rose has to do valiant battle to hold its own with these two sisters of snowy garb and flaunting airs. Nevertheless the rose remains the favorite of all the June flowers, as lovely when its petals come to fullest bloom and fall as when in the bud.

June, month of brides, roses, graduates—month, too, of the hay harvest moon, of the odors of new mown hay, of plans for vacation, month of the "Good Old Summer-time," of long evenings and pleasant memories; a rare month, a wonderful month, so much to be enjoyed, and only 30 days in which to do it.

In the shuffle we seem to have lost all track of McNutt, of Manila, last seen behind a decimal point in a Gallup poll.

Nowadays, if the family doctor speaks of an opening it could be an appendectomy or the first chapter of his life and hard times.

Now that Leslie Burgin is named, British minister of supply, we must watch closely to see who will be picked as Charley McCarthy.

diploma presentation, in the company of a large number of relatives and friends who gathered for the affair. The speaker of the evening was assistant superintendent of Bucks County school, Charles H. Boehm, Morrisville, who gave his subject about the title of the play presented by the students, "The Land of Good Citizenship."

He told of the needs of the girls and boys and how the government must help when formal education is finished. He stressed need of loyalty on the part of students for their leaders, and informed of what is being done by some European countries for the youth. The speaker also decried the fact that so many criminals today are so youthful.

The play was staged by the following graduates: Viola Schaffer, Lillian Hirst, Betty Bachofer, Richard Anderson, Samuel Doto, William Hubbs, Christine Johnson; aided by the following from other grades: Louise Doan, Laddie Baker, Irma Mazzocchi, Ronald Morgan, Louise Bachofer; and two who danced, Mary Carman and Harry Wright.

Special awards from the Home and School League were presented by Mrs. Helen Nichols, each graduate receiving a pin. The girl and boy receiving highest averages in the final examinations given by the county, received awards, these being Betty Bachofer and Richard Anderson.

The American Legion medal awards were announced by Mrs. Walter Strouse and the Rev. Samuel Gaskell. The winners are Christine Johnson and William Hubbs.

The church was decorated in the class colors, blue and gold, and with many floral bouquets.

its board of directors. In brief, its Communist connection is established beyond question.

IT is not that, however, which makes the Alliance unique. The thing that stands it out is that it is an organization formed among recipients of Government funds, most of them Government employees, the purpose of which is to put pressure on Government officials and on Congress, and it is encouraged by the very Government officials upon whom pressure is put. It was, for example, Mr. Aubrey Williams, head of the NYA, who when WPA aide to Mr. Hopkins, said he hoped every WPA worker would join the Alliance.

MR. HOPKINS as WPA head had a somewhat similar attitude toward Mr. Lasser, the President has had him at the White House and he is on intimate terms with Mr. Tommy Corcoran and other New Deal Brain Trusters. It is almost incredible that this Communist-saturated organization, whose object is to browbeat Congress and push the Government to greater and greater expenditures for relief should find its staunchest friends not only among the Government officials who administer relief but in the White House itself. There, of course, are plausible arguments for the existence of this organization. It is said that the people on WPA have a right to "collective bargaining" and a "living wage"; that they are entitled to organize and express their grievances, and a lot of other such things.

NONE of these alter the basic fact that essentially this is a Communist-inspired organization of government-supported people, the purpose of which is to coerce the Government which supports them. Through personal encouragement of its leaders by Administration leaders the Government co-operates in its own coercion. This is a grotesque state of affairs. It does not really make sense. Why it is permitted without protest either from the people or from Congress is hard to explain. Why it is done by the Administration is clear enough—Mr. Lasser and his Communist friends have put the Workers Alliance into New Deal politics, as they boast, "up to our necks." They constitute, as Dr. High points out, the New Deal "shock troops." They co-operated last year in the great "purge" campaign. They claim credit for defeating Mr. O'Connor in New York and perhaps deserve credit for the election of Governor Lehman, whom a change of 34,000 votes would have beaten.

THERE is close co-operation between Mr. Lasser's publicity departments and those of the C. I. O. in Washington. In various States Alliance and C. I. O. leaders co-operate. Their aims are much the same. They both invariably demand greater appropriations than Mr. Roosevelt asks and militantly support him on every proposal that costs money. In the past two years young Mr. Lasser has had an astonishing success. Today he has a power to make trouble in this country not pleasant to contemplate. Getting the wife of the President of the United States as one of the speakers at his conference was a brilliant stroke. As Mrs. Roosevelt is immune to criticism, her approval builds Mr. Lasser up pretty high. Her sympathetic presence will be an immense asset to his cause. Undoubtedly Mrs. Roosevelt, in this as in everything else she does, is impelled by the highest motives. None the less, those who fully grasp the implications of the Alliance will wish she had not been persuaded. Certainly it isn't necessary to the living of that normal life for which she pleads, that she should stamp Mr. Lasser and his Communist friends with her approval.

"AIR MAIL BRIDE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XV

Take it all in all, the family had been fairly decent about Marie.

Once she'd got over her shyness, and her tear-streaked face had begun to look normal, she'd made a real impression even on Bee. "Goodness knows why she married YOU!" Bee had said, which was a left-handed compliment, but a credit to his taste just the same.

At the table Mom had been rather high and mighty, and even Pop made a few dirty cracks about Los Angeles and the kind of people who lived there, but he'd nipped that in the bud. He'd said:

"We've decided not to stay over night after all. Marie is rather tired, and I think we'd better be getting along to our hotel, so if you'll excuse us—"

That showed everybody just where he stood.

Pop had a fit, he wouldn't hear of them leaving. "Neither would I. Even Bee said, 'Oh, why go out into the rain? Stay for goodness' sake!'"

Well—everything was all right now. Three days ago he hadn't had any more idea of getting married than of committing suicide. If anyone had told him . . . well time to have to go out and look for a job, too. Middle of February, raining pitchforks . . .

"That's right, Pop," he said again, to something his father said.

And then he grinned, as he saw Mom, making like a homing pigeon, for the library table where she kept the photograph albums, and Marie right at her heels.

"This one never did him justice. It was right after he had the jaundice. The doctor told me afterwards he never thought I'd pull him through. This one is cute, I think. When he was six months. It says under it—see?—Edward Thomas Wilson, aged six months."

"I lettered it," Pop said from his chair. "I developed all the negatives, too, and made my own prints. Spent hundreds of dollars, probably, just buying film and developing and printing."

"And this is later. Eddie was a year and a half then, and Bee was going on four. She was trying to lift him and Papa snapped them, though I never let her. I never believe in letting one child lift another. I had a friend whose little girl dropped the baby on his head, and he's never been quite right, though of course I wouldn't want you to mention it, because naturally they're very sensitive about it."

"White ink," Pop said. "You'll notice it's all done in white ink. You won't find many people can letter like that—all in italics!"

"The lettering is lovely," Marie said. And she smiled at the funny old pictures, and loved the curly topped little boy that Edward had been.

The clock in the hall struck the half-hour. Mr. Wilson took out his watch, and looked at it. "Ten-thirty," he said. "Bed time."

Winding it carefully, he put it back in his pocket, and began his nightly round of window locking and door inspecting.

"Bee got her key?"

"Yes, I reminded her before she left."

"You got to be careful," he told Marie. "I always say, lock the stable first, and then your horse doesn't get away."

"Not that we have a horse," Edward observed, with a grin that turned into a yawn.

"But it does pay to be safe," Marie said, anxious to please.

Mrs. Wilson said, "Good night, I hope you sleep well. There's an extra coverlet in the hall closet if she wants it, Eddie. The patchwork

"Good night!"

"Good night!"

"They were alone at last, in the room that used to be the sleeping porch."

"How I'm going to sleep," Edward smiled at his bride, who stood, shyly just inside the door. "I'm so ti—"

Then yawns overcame him, and he stretched comfortably and hung his coat over the back of the chair. "Tired, honey?"

"Dead!"

He smiled and yawned again. "So am I. But tomorrow, thank heaven, we can sleep. Let's sleep all day. And all night, and all the next day and the next night. Let's sleep for a week!"

"I think I could. But we'll have to start out pretty early, won't we? I mean—wouldn't it be a good idea to start first thing in the morning?"

"To start what?"

"To start—EDWARD! To start finding a place to live!"

He had one shoe off. It dropped with a thump, from his astonished fingers. "But everything's all right now. We don't have to leave!"

She was brushing her hair. It was quite long, when she brushed the curls out. It hid her face. She didn't answer, so he said again:

"The folks want us to stay, there's no rush, is there?"

The brushing went on. It went on so long that it began to irritate him. "You promised," she said at last, in a small, choked voice.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

The setting of a weird old castle and a story keyed by mysterious buried treasure supply thrills aplenty in the new "Bulldog Drummond" adventure film. "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police" The H. C. (Sapper) McNeill thriller, which had its local opening last night at the Bristol Theatre, features John Howard and Heather Angel in a fast-paced story with exciting new angles.

Pursued by the sort of mystery and intrigue which have prevented his marriage so many times in the past, Howard, who plays the dapper "Drummond," is not even safe in his medieval castle, to which he and his friends retreat the night before the planned nuptials.

Action is the keynote of Monogram's "Streets of New York," which opens Sunday at the Bristol Theatre, with Jackie Cooper in the top spot as young Jimmy Keenan, who goes his own way of decency and right living in spite of the fact that his brother is New York's head racketeer.

RITZ THEATRE

When present-day train and automobile travelers speed along the main routes between the mid-western states and the Pacific coast, they follow the trails laid out many years ago by the buffalo and the stagecoaches. A portion of these historic routes through Arizona and New Mexico is shown in "Stagecoach," a United Artists release, starring Claire Trevor and John Wayne, which plays at the Ritz Theatre today.

Charlie McCarthy succeeded in getting W. C. Fields' goat right at the start of their new Universal picture, "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man," coming to the Ritz Theatre.

ST. LUKE'S PLAYS POOR BALL AGAINST CORNWELLS

St. Luke's played very poorly to defeat Cornwallis behind the 4-hit pitching of Slaven but put on the pressure in the 6th inning to score 6 runs and put them out in front after trailing for 5 innings.

A two-base hit by Arnold in the 6th inning was the telling blow which scored 2 men to put the game on ice for St. Luke's after they tied the score in the same inning. This was the play off of the tie game. Played by these teams on May 26th.

A FLUKE HIT WINS GAME FOR GRUNDY NINE

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE
Result of last night
Grundy's 6, Odd Fellows 5

A fluke hit over first base by Charlie Ithig gave the Grundy's nine a 6-5 triumph over the Odd Fellows last evening on Landreth's field. It was the second straight reverse for the Oddies and shoved them into fourth place.

Ithig's bingle came in the sixth frame with Van Lenten on second. Narcisi had opened the canto by reaching first on Cooper's boot. He was sacrificed to second by Steinbrum. VanLenten hit to short and Narcisi was killed at third. VanLenten stole second and scored when Ithig popped a short single over first.

Alex Dewsnap provided the longest base hit of the evening when he socked a tremendous home run with Cooper on base in the third inning. The pill went into the creek embankment in right field.

The losing pitcher of the tilt was Dave Ennis who relieved Jake Praul in the third after the Grundyites had counted five runners. Narcisi, although touched for eleven hits, kept them well scattered.

Jimmy Cooper had three out of four to lead the batters. Dewsnap, Ithig and Vanzant had a pair of hits each.

LANDRETH IX LOSES TO KENSINGTON

The Landreth nine lost a loosely-played game to the Kensington team of the Phila. League at D and Tioga streets last night, 3-2.

Kensington scored their winning run in the eighth inning. R. Sailer started the inning with a two-base hit advanced on a sacrifice. With Conway at bat Broderick had Sailer trapped off but made a bad throw to Rossi, the runner scoring.

Siellia's error, two base on balls loaded the bases for Landreth in the third and Barclaw's sacrifice fly scored the run. Miksis, Barclaw and Broderick hit successive singles in the fifth to score the Farmers' second run. Miksis led both teams at bat with three hits.

Landreth will play the South Phillies of the Phila. League tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Organized Fire Co. After Big Blaze

Ewald, the latter two deceased, Reed organized the upper company. In 1909, Morrisville had one company, Union. Earlier there had been the Keystone Company. Union was located then in the rear of the present Borough Hall while the Keystone Company was situated opposite the site of the present Grace M. E. Church. Using a hand-drawn hose reel, volunteers would pull the "engine" to the site of the fire, many times arriving too late to do much good.

One day a call came for a house fire at the corner of East Franklin street and North Delmoor avenue, then Mill street. The volunteers pulled the apparatus from the firehouse to the southern section of Mill street. A trolley, luckily, came by, and they attached the "engine" to it and started up Mill street towards the blazing home. By the time they arrived, however, the house had almost burned down, and a woman had been severely burned. Reed and his "bucket brigade" helped as much as they could to save what was left. The woman died later from her burns and the group of men in the upper section of the borough, including Reed, decided to form a company to protect their neighborhood better.

They met regularly at the home of Mr. Stockton and in 1910 built headquarters on North Delmoor avenue, now opposite the Morrisville water works. Morrisville people had protection from two companies, from a better location, with one in the upper end and the other in the lower.

Mr. Reed was a board of trustees member and in 1911 was chosen as foreman, which post he held until 1924. The equipment consisted of a hose-wheel, drawn by hand, until 1916, when they purchased an old car, took the body off and substituted a hose body. A "Palmer Slinger" and "Oldsmobile" followed in later years and in 1923 the rapidly growing company purchased a fire apparatus with chemical and hose. A pumper was bought in 1925 and in 1933 a booster-system truck. In 1928 the company moved into their new quarters on North

CHAPTER XVI

"I'm going to give a bridge lunch for you," Bee said, "to have you meet the girls."

"Bee has some lovely friends," Mrs. Wilson contributed.

"I'm going to have it in a hotel, of course, but I haven't exactly decided yet. Betty Cleave had hers at the St. Francis, but I—"

"In a HOTEL!" Up went Mr. Wilson's chin. "Isn't your own home good enough for your friends? I don't like this hotel entertaining. New fangled snobishness—that's all it is. Spending money on waiters and fannies—"

"I'm giving this party! And I'm paying for it!"

"All right, if you don't appreciate your own home you can—"

"I can leave it—any time I want—and you'd like that wouldn't you! I'd like to know what they'd be left after I took out my things and—"

"BEE! Please! You mustn't talk so to your father, I—"

Please, Mrs. Wilson's eyes begged. Please don't quarrel before strangers.

"But he makes me so TIRED!" Mr. Wilson got up from the table, leaving his dessert. "Since I make you so tired—since my opinion is so worthless—"

"CLAUDE! You didn't touch your turnover! And you haven't had your second cup of tea!"

"Wait a minute, Pop!" Edward pulled him back toward the table. "Stop listening to those women and listen to me. Listen! I got a job!"

"You got a job, son?" His mother's eyes filled with tears. "Why, that's wonderful! That's just wonderful. But why didn't you tell—"

"Saving it for Marie. What do you say, baby?"

"Oh, Edward! I'm so GLAD!" Wilson sat down again. "Not so easy to get a job now, either. Many a man walking the streets that—"

"Pass your cup, Claude. But I do think, Eddie, that you ought at least have mentioned, to your mother—" telephone, Beel! It's probably for you!"

Mrs. Wilson, beaming still, turned to Marie. "She's always been popular. Both of them, I don't know how it was with you, but Beel—"

Bee came back. "It's for you, Ed." Edward swallowed his last bite of turnover. "Press?"

"Helen," Bee said. Edward set down his fork. He rose slowly. They all watched him. His father cleared his throat, looked at Marie. His mother leaned toward him, said in a low voice, "Does she know?"

"Does she know what?" Mrs. Wilson moistened her lips. "Know that you're—married?"

Edward shut the door into the hall, where the telephone was. But they could hear his voice—and then his voice, again.

"More tea, Beatrice?" "No, thanks—well! Just a little—"

"Eddie didn't say what kind of a job—"

"Heavens sake! Give him time—he WILL!"

They were all edgy—waiting. He seems to be enjoying that conversation, Marie thought. Not that there was any reason why he shouldn't.

She'd never thought she was the only girl he ever knew. Only, it was funny—she'd never really thought about the other girls he did know, either.

He came back, smiling. They all waited expectantly. "Well, since you insist, Mom, I'll have that extra turnover."

"You couldn't have eaten much in Los Angeles," she said. "I never saw you with such an appetite! Eddie—you didn't say WHERE you were going to work."

He said, "Oh, it isn't so much, mom—but it's a job." He turned to Marie. "Just a job in a gas station."

I worked there once before, when I was in college. Not a bad guy to work for. And it's a tidyover, until something better breaks."

"I think it's wonderful!" "Silly! It's not so hot!"

"I know—but to get it so soon! And when you have one job, it's always easy to get another. I've heard lots of people say that!"

"That's right, too. Besides, the hours are rather broken—a lot of night work and I'll be able to get around and make contacts during the day."

"Night work!" Mrs. Wilson gave a long, rattling sigh. "Working till 10 o'clock—maybe 11—every night again, and sleeping all morning. And never home at meal times!"

Edward shrugged, then he smiled. "Maybe I'd better tell the boss to work nights and Sundays, and let me have the day shift."

"Not SUNDAYS, too! You don't mean you'll be working Sundays again, too!"

"And why not?" Mr. Wilson demanded. "When I was a boy we worked 12 hours a day and none of this Saturday afternoon and vacation nonsense, either. If you'd try to remember that Eddie is a man grown, Mattie, with a wife to support, and not raise silly objections—"

Mrs. Wilson looked at Marie. "I was just thinking of his health—that's all. I've had him sick on my hands before."

Now Edward was exasperated. "My Lord, WHEN? When I was 8—and had measles!"

"You were 9—almost 10. It was that hot August that we—"

"All right—I was 10, only for Pete's sake, forget it. My health has been all right since."

"But if you start night work, and 12 hours—Look at Will Hockmeyer! Everybody knows it was that night bakery work that was the start of his—"
